NEW RULE NOW WORKING WELL

Police Are Succeeding Well in Teaching Public How to Observe the New Traffic Law Down Town.

"If we were arresting people for jay walking now the city and county jails would be full to the door," said a traffic policeman today. In regard to the recent law, which has been in effect since Saturday. Every minute of the day the policemen are busy telling people the meaning of the white lines on the pavement and chasing others back into the lines when they attempt to cut across. It is a big job, they all agree, and the sooner people become convinced of the fact that they mean business the better it will be.

No arrests have been made as yet because the people must learn the workings of the law before it would be justified. Police Chief Jones said Monday that he was not sure when the law would begin to be rigidly enforced, but it will not be until the offenses become a great deal less in number than they are now.

The automobile regulations are in almost perfect working order. The patrolmen have the system of sealing down to a fine point and little or no trouble is encountered from that source.

The advisability of the regulations are being daily demonstrated, on the main streets and the evident superiority of its workings over the old haphazard rule is clearly demonstrated.

The real sufferer of the rule is the traffic cop, and his spare moments are limited mostly to the time he spends in telephoning in his hourly report.

HELP! LOCKJAW IN LEG; TRENTINI IS VACCINATED

Pittsburgh, Dec. 7.—Before leaving Detroit for Pittsburgh last night, Enrico Trentini, prima donna, insisted that she be vaccinated. A physician did the job.

As her train neared Pittsburgh Trentini groaned, fell back in her seat and screamed:

"Oh, I have—I have—what you call—Lockjaw in the leg."

In the midst of much excitement, a taxicab was called when the train reached here, and she was hurried to Mercy hospital. After a diagnosis, a smiling surgeon announced curtly: "No danger. Her leg was only aseptically treated." But, he added, questioning Mano Blumenthal of Trentini's company, "vaccination doesn't seem to have taken."

"No," replied the manager; "it wouldn't; we only used water."

CLUB ORGANIZED FOR SINGLE TAX

First Step Taken For Establishment of State Wide Association in Oklahoma.

SENATOR DAVIS INTERESTED

The first steps in the formation of the Oklahoma Single Tax League, a statewide organization, were taken at a meeting held last night at the home of Dr. Joseph Blatt, Rabbi Temple Israel at 721 West Seventeenth street. About thirty well known citizens of Oklahoma City and a few from other cities were in attendance.

The meeting was held to formulate plans for promulgating single tax laws throughout the state. Mrs. Joseph Feis and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kieler, who are in this city promoting the cause of the single tax, attended the meeting, and Mr. Kieler outlined fully the workings of the system.

A temporary organization of the single tax league was formed with A. D. Engleman, an insurance man, of this city, as president. Mr. Engleman is expected later in the week to call a meeting of the temporary body to form a permanent organization. It is the intention first to form an active single tax club in Oklahoma City from which the organization of clubs throughout the state will be pushed.

Kieler Outlines Plan.

Mr. Kieler explained the plan of the organization to those present and said that clubs, similar to the one formed here, have been established in nearly every section of the United States which has been visited by Mrs. Feis, widow of the millionaire philanthropist who founded the idea, and members of her commission. Mr. Kieler explained that these clubs usually meet once or twice a month and thoroughly discuss the single tax question and consider means of spreading the idea.

He said that the first idea of the Feis' Single Tax commission was to secure national legislation on the subject but this was soon abandoned and the plan now being pursued of visiting the various states and organizing clubs for the promotion of the movement among the people was taken up. The desire of Mrs. Feis, Mr. Kieler and other leaders of the single tax movement now is to secure the adoption of the single tax system in the various states and through its operation there demonstrate the advisability of adopting it as a national policy.

Senator Davis Present.

Among those who attended the single tax meeting last night were State Senator Clarence Davis of Sapulpa, who, it is said, became greatly interested in the movement after listening to the explanation given by Mr. Kieler. Among others in attendance were: Mr. and Mrs. Leo Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Barth, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Baer, A. Rosenthal and wife, Miss Edith Eisman, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kieler, and Mrs. Joseph Feis.

One of the chief difficulties that would be met in establishing a single tax system in Oklahoma, mentioned in the discussion at the meeting last night, was that Oklahoma possesses so much Indian land that is not taxable.

Mr. Kieler, however, did not believe that this would present an insurmountable difficulty as more of this land is becoming taxable from year to year.

The single tax idea, as explained by Mr. Kieler, embraces abolition of all forms of taxation except a tax on land. There would be no personal, revenue, or excise taxes and the value of improvements would not be taxed.

Unimproved Land Tax.

In the case of city property, only the value of the lots whether vacant or improved would be assessed for taxation and an unimproved lot would pay as much taxes as one which had a ten story building upon it, if the actual values of the two pieces of land were equal.

The adoption of the single tax would shut out all speculative values, would prevent the holding of unimproved land for future use and, in the opinion of the advocates of the system, would do much to alleviate all the poverty which now exists in the world. In addition to furnishing sufficient revenue to run all local, state and national governments.

The City Councils departed today for Norman where the members addressed the students of the state university. They returned this afternoon and Mrs. Feis addressed the women of the city in the Carnegie library. Mr. and Mrs. Kieler and Mrs. Feis expect to depart tonight for Tulsa and Wichita and later will make a short tour of Colorado.

TAX STAMPS RECEIVED

Part of Big Order Arrives at Reserve Collector's Office and Remainder is Expected Soon.

Hubert L. Boles, United States internal revenue collector, today received partial shipment of war tax stamps and expects to receive the balance of the supplies ordered by him tonight or tomorrow.

The shipment received today is a portion of an order for about 2,000,000 revenue stamps ranging in denominations from one-eighth of a cent up to $5 each.

Mr. Boles stated today that as soon as the full supply arrives he will designate a number of postoffices in the state where the stamps will be placed on sale.

The post office at Oklahoma City will be included in the list.

Banks at present are the only institutions outside the revenue collector's office that are authorized to sell war tax stamps.

Governor Cruz today received a request from C. Herzog of Hooker, Texas county, asking that a reward be offered for the man who killed his son.

Herzog says that his son was killed on November 29, and the man escaped and has not been captured.

Herzog believes if a reward is offered it will reach the attention of other officers or detectives and they will be on the lookout for the man.

TRIBUTE PAID DEAD

Joe B. Hines Explains that Elks Creed of Sunshine Should Pervade Memorial Service.

Glowing tribute to their brothers who died during the year 1914 was paid by members of the Oklahoma City order of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks at services held at Elks hall Sunday afternoon.

The memorial address was delivered by Joe B. Hines of Fort Worth, Texas, who explained that the creed of the order is one of sunshine and that this spirit, rather than one of sadness should pervade memorial services.

The musical program was rendered by the choir from Temple Israel Isreal and special orchestra. The choir was directed by Howard D. Williams and the leader of the orchestra was E. J. Woska.

Four Oklahoma City Elks died in 1914 as follows: P. J. Hastings, C. T. Williams, John M. Wheeler and J. A. Garth.

ECHOES OF THE STREETS

Charging that her husband, C. H. Gordon, against whom she has filed divorce proceedings, and his attorney have made life miserable for her, Mrs. Grace Gordon filed a petition in the superior court this morning asking an injunction restraining the defendant and his counsel from hounding, shadowing, and molesting this plaintiff so as to place her in immediate fear of bodily harm and asks for $10 a week temporary alimony and $1,000 with which to prosecute the action.

The plaintiff alleges that because of things that it is threatened will be brought out in the suit, it is necessary for her to bring witnesses from out of the state to appear in her behalf.
